Subject: News about Lisa Carr
Importance: High

Lisa Carr interviewed for her first job at KQVR the same day as the Loma Prieta Earthquake in 1989. She had just graduated from Sac State. She got the job and joined the station as a writer.

Over the course of her nearly 35-year career, Lisa has been a producer, Digital writer, Executive Producer, Managing Editor and Assistant News Director. She has coached, mentored and touched countless people (including yours truly), making us not just better journalists but better people.

After many other earthquakes, wildfires, national murder investigations and elections (oh, all those different elections systems), Lisa is now ready to stop taking others' vacation requests and actually spend real time on herself and family.

It is with bittersweet feelings that I want to let everyone know Lisa's last day is Friday, March 29.

I am grateful – and relieved – Lisa will be here for the Super Bowl and March Primary Election.

We will be posting for a new Assistant News Director. If you or anyone you know are interested please tell me. In the coming weeks I will update on how we will handle Lisa's duties temporarily until a new Assistant News Director is in place.

We will send Lisa off into retirement in appropriate style. In the meantime, please join me in thanking Lisa for dedicating her many talents to this organization and to the audience for more than three fantastic decades.
