This morning, Heaven welcomed my dad with a huge strawberry shortcake and ice cream. Our cat Pudd is relaxing on his lap right now purring, and probably stealing some of that ice cream. My dad had a great passion for television news and technology. He was a successful newsroom manager who made a name for himself in the business. But more importantly, he was a loving husband, father and pop. He was so proud of all of his "girls" and always concerned about our well-being. We'll miss you so much Pop. For those of you who'd like to attend, we are currently working on arrangements for his services and will update here soon.
